Groups are a very powerfull tool to grant/restrict access permissions.

Take the demo as example. You have a list of musicevents sorted into different categories. For each of these categories you can promote maintainers, means to create a group of people who takes care of a category.

Once you have assigned a group to a category, only members of this Group are allowed to submit events into this category. Members of other groups or users who have general access permission to submit events, will no longer be able to create events for this category (except administrators and super administrators).

Together with the edit own events flag in the Settings -> Access tab, Groups are a powerfull tool to manage your Event database.
